DEATH ROLL IN FRENCH RAILWAY DISASTER MOUNTS TO 217

TOTTENHAM DEFEATED

ARSENAL'S LEAGUE LEAD INCREASED

Aston Villa Return
To Form.

CHESTERFIELD BEATEN

London, To-day.

Arsenal, premier soccer league champions, retained their grip on the championship yesterday when they took the second brace of home points from Leeds United, while Tottenham Hotspur, London's second leading club, were beaten at home by Huddersfield and thus fell from second position in the table to fourth.

Newcastle's away win at Liverpool on Saturday was nullified by a home defeat at the hands of Everton, Cup-holders, while Blackburn Rovers were held by Middlesbrough to a goalless draw.

Aston Villa won the midlands "derby" when they inflicted a smashing defeat on the Wolves by 6 goals to 2. They beat Everton on Saturday.

There was no change in the leadership of the Second Division as Grimsby won and Blackpool drew.

Preston, however, jumped two places to third position as the result of their decisive win at Brentford.

Crystal Palace failed to aid their London rivals, Queen's Park Rangers, when they lost their home game to Norwich by the only goal, but the Rangers beat another London club in Clapton Orient to keep on level terms with Norwich. Coventry secured third position in the table with two home points against Cardiff.

One of the big surprises of the day was provided when Darlington left Chesterfield with both points.

The Hearts rose to third place in the Scottish League when they beat the Airdrieonians by 3 goals to 1, but they are lagging far behind Motherwell and the Rangers. Celtic, who were beaten at home by Queen of the South on Saturday, defeated Queen's Park on their own ground.

HUNDREDS INJURED IN CRASH

EXPRESS TEARS THROUGH SIX COACHES

SECOND COLLISION NARROWLY AVERTED AT THE SAME PLACE

PARIS, TO-DAY.

THE OFFICIAL DEATH ROLL IN THE FRENCH TRAIN SMASH WHICH OCCURRED AT LAGNY, LESS THAN 15 MILES FROM PARIS, ON CHRISTMAS EVE, IS 217. WHILE HUNDREDS LIE INJURED IN HOSPITAL.

The disaster is the worst since May 22, 1915, when 224 soldiers were killed and 246 injured at Greta.

The crash occurred in a dense fog, the heavily laden Strasbourg express, travelling at 65 m.p.h. to make up lost time, crashing through six coaches of the stationary Paris express before coming to a standstill.

A second disaster was narrowly averted, when the duplicate Strasbourg express having passed the danger signals at full speed, was brought to a stop only 100 yards from the wreckage of the earlier train.

With the exception of the American and several central Europeans, the victims are all French. Many of the bodies are mutilated beyond recognition.

Fog and frost were certainly the cause of the catastrophe, stated the Director of the Compagnie de Lest to Reuter yesterday. Both the driver and the fireman have been arrested.

The Bishop of Meaux, with tears in his eyes, spent the night among the dead and wounded.

Apparently, an even more terrible accident was only just averted as another express from Meaux, bound for Paris, pulled up 100 yards from the mass of wreckage, after its driver had already passed red danger signals, which, in the thick fog, he mistook for green.

Only a presentiment that all was not well caused him to glance back. He then saw that the lights were red and crammed on the brakes.

"Line Open" Signalled To Driver.

All the victims of the disaster are French apart from one American and several people from Central Europe.

The Deputy, M. Schleiter, who was among the victims, was one of the popular representatives of the Chamber of Deputies and was Mayor of Verdun.

The driver and stoker of the Strasbourg express were questioned by the Magistrate and affirmed that the automatic signal behind the Nancy train signified "Line Open."

Little Entente Economic Union.

The permanent council of the Little Entente will convene in Yugoslavia in January to discuss the Balkan political and economic situation.

The "Little Entente," comprising Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, have been drawing closer and closer together towards an economic union as a result of the world depression.

The programme contemplated provides that Czechoslovakia would obtain part of her agricultural supplies from the other two countries, and also from ore, metal and other raw materials from Czechoslovakia, an industrial country, in return would obtain a

Benediction To 150 Corpses

M. Paul Morin, former Under-Secretary of State, Senator Hachette and a Deputy, M. Schleiter, were killed in the disaster. Three other Deputies were seriously injured.

Two hundred dead and injured were taken to Paris and 80 sent to the hospital at Lagny. Early yesterday morning, the Cardinal and Archbishop of Paris arrived at Gare de Lest and gave benediction to 150 corpses, men, women and children, which were laid in long rows at the station where a constant stream of frantic relatives was seen.

The trains involved, both the Paris and the Strasbourg expresses were running in duplicate.

The Paris express had been stationary for several minutes in answer to a fog signal. The Strasbourg express was travelling at 65 miles an hour to recover lost time.

The driver did not see the illuminated signals or hear the fog signals until his engine was crashing through six passenger coaches. — Reuter.

"WORSE THAN SAAR WAR SIGHTS."

100 Of The 300 Injured
In Serious Condition.

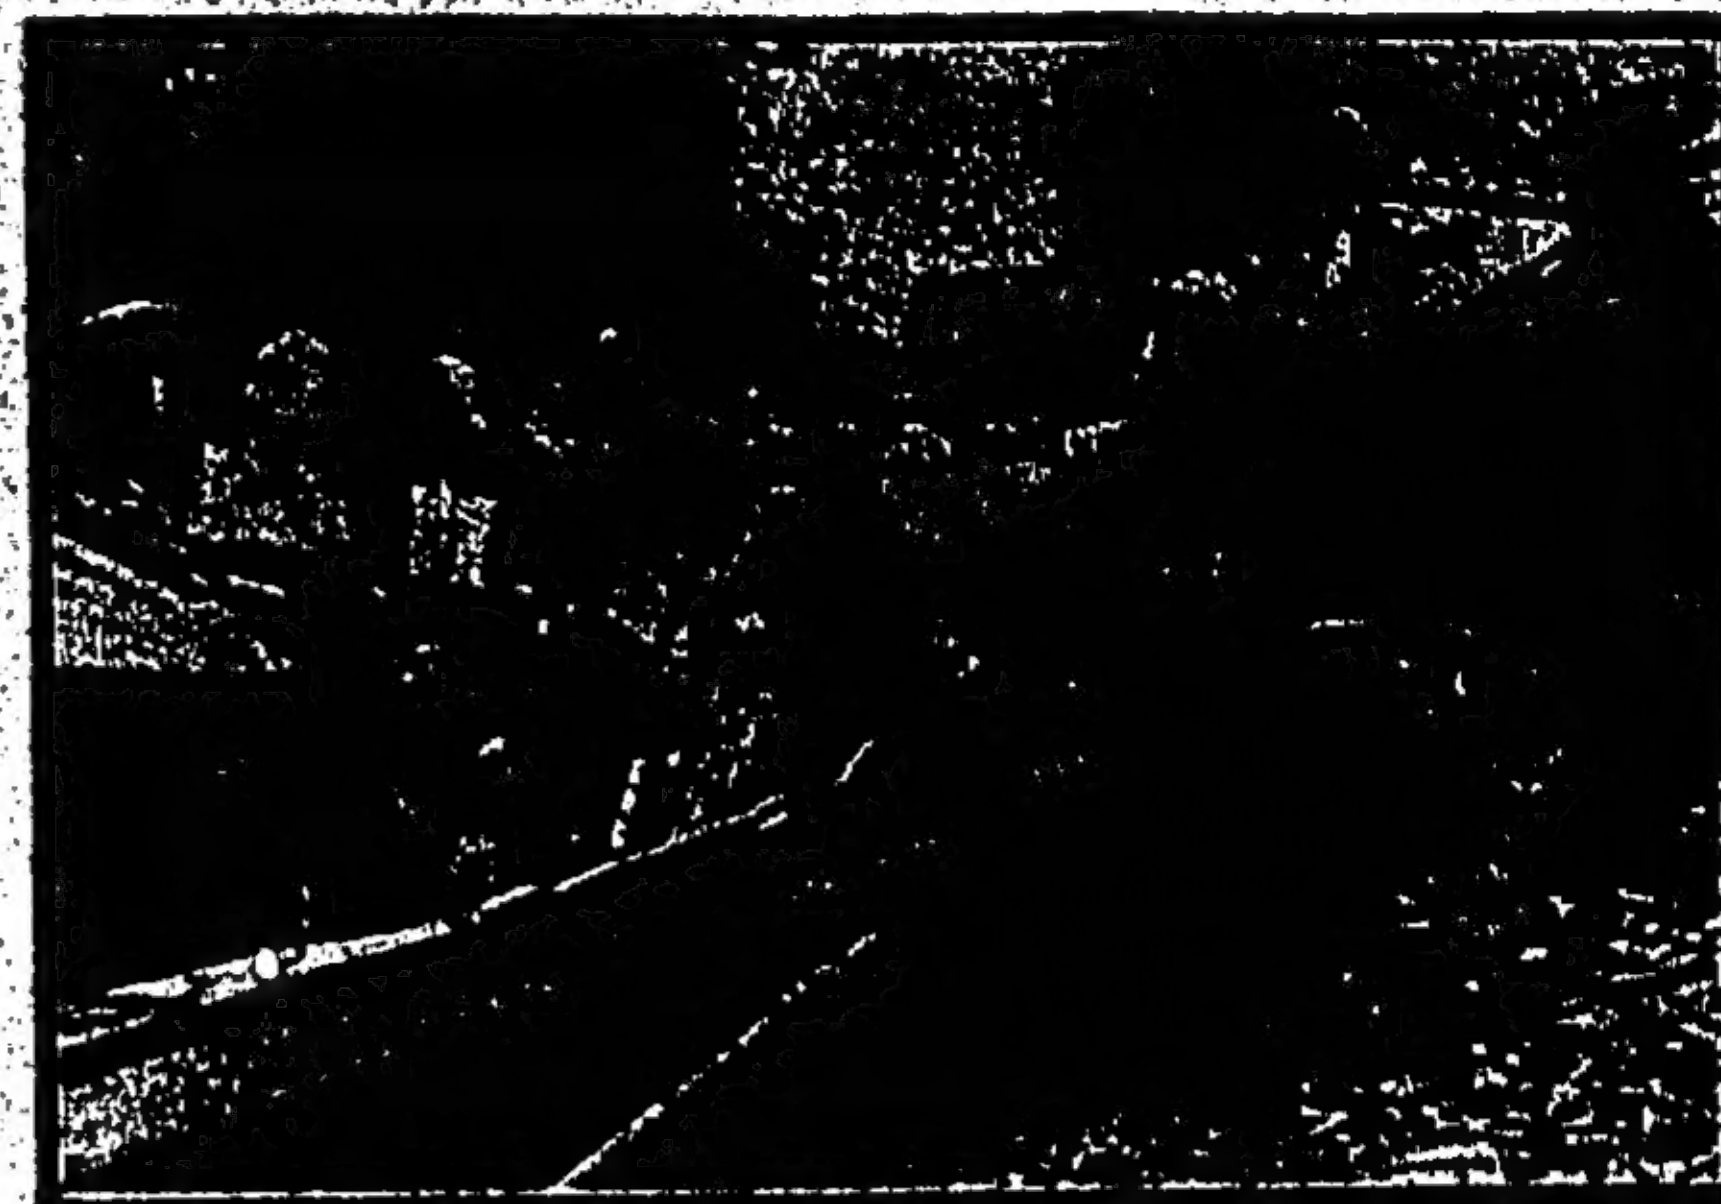

London, To-day.

Grief has overshadowed the Christmas Festival in two European countries. France is in National mourning over the Lagny disaster, while Spain mourns the death of Colonel Macia, the Grand Old Man of Catalonia.

The Lagny death-roll continues to mount and is now certain to exceed 200, while 100 to 200 of those injured are in a very serious condition.

150 coffins lie in the Chapelle Ardente (Gar-de-Lest), which President Lebrun visited this morning.

A Cabinet Minister who visited the wreckage said that it surpassed the worst war sights of the Sea.

The death roll in French railway accidents this year has reached a high figure following the appalling disaster at Lagny, near Paris, on Christmas Eve, when 217 people were killed. The picture shows the wreckage of the Cherbourg-Paris express which leapt the rails, killing 30 people and injuring 90, last month.

Colonel Macia was elected President on December 14, 1932. The Catalan Statute was approved by the Spanish Cortes on September 16, 1932. The first elections to Parliament were held on November 20, 1932, and Parliament was opened on December 6, 1932.

CHRISTMAS TRAGEDY ON THE TAMAR

Signalman Sullivan Killed.

FATAL FALL DOWN HATCHWAY

The Christmas festivities on board H.M.S. Tamar, the depot ship, lying in the Basin of the Naval Dockyard, were interrupted in tragic fashion about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Signalman John Augustine Sullivan, while walking on the upper deck, tripped and fell down the hatchway amidships.

He was picked up terribly injured about the head and at once conveyed to the Royal Naval Hospital, where he succumbed to his injuries at 5.20 this morning.

The late Signalman Sullivan, who was about 32 years of age, was a native of Cork, Irish Free State.

"CHIANG ACTS ON ADVICE OF 'THE TIMES'"

Methods Denounced
By Fukien.

UNARMED CIVILIANS SHOT AT FROM THE AIR

Foochow, To-day.

Following the bombing, during Christmas, of Foochow, the Fukien Foreign Office yesterday issued a communique denouncing Marshal Chiang Kai-shek's "doctrine of ruthlessness."

The communique declares that Marshal Chiang is acting on the "advice" of The Times, the London newspaper which recently declared that Marshal Chiang would be justified in taking any measure to suppress the People's Government.

Marshal Chiang has caused Foochow to be bombed by planes which were purchased with money subscribed by the people for the purpose of repelling the Japanese invasion, the communique continues.

Stating that unarmed civilians and women were fired on from the air by machine-guns, the communique states that Foochow is an unfortified city, and that the reckless bombardment is clearly indefensible.

The bombardment clearly indicates that Marshal Chiang is applying to civil war in China a doctrine of ruthlessness and all the frightfulness formulated by Germany during the Great War, it states.

"While Marshal Chiang has not the courage to use his aeroplanes against the Japanese, he has not hesitated to use them to start another of his periodical civil wars and massacres of his own countrymen," the communique concludes. — National Press.

HIS MAJESTY'S CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

MARCH OF MODERN SCIENCE.

"SOBER RECOVERY DURING THE PAST YEAR"

London, To-day.

The every-day application of goodwill in outlook and policy which had been rendered possible by the march of modern science, had been a most significant development of the past year, asserted His Majesty the King in the course of his world-wide Christmas Day broadcast from Sandringham.

"Science brings home to us that there is neither time nor room for old habits of thought and action. But science's gifts are useless without the exercise of sanity, patience and goodwill by all my peoples," His Majesty declared.

The past year, he said, had shown sober if unspectacular progress towards recovery.

The King concluded with extending Christmas greetings, especially to the children, and a heartfelt "God bless you." — Reuter.

A QUIET XMAS

Police And Magistrates
Given A Respite.

"Crime during the Christmas holidays has been abnormally small," said Divisional Inspector Shannon to a "China Mail" representative at the Central Police Station this morning. "We had only one hawker brought into the charge-room on Christmas Day," he stated.

Only a small number of minor cases were brought before the Police Court this morning and these were dealt with in a very short time by the two Magistrates, Mr. E. W. Hamilton and Mr. S. Balfour.

BEGIN THE DAY RADIANTLY!

You Will, if You Take Sufficient Care of Your Blood and Nerves.

How much do so many people miss at this time of the year because, instead of rising vigorous and eager to enjoy the glorious early morning hours, they lie over-late, too languid and spiritless to leave their bed!

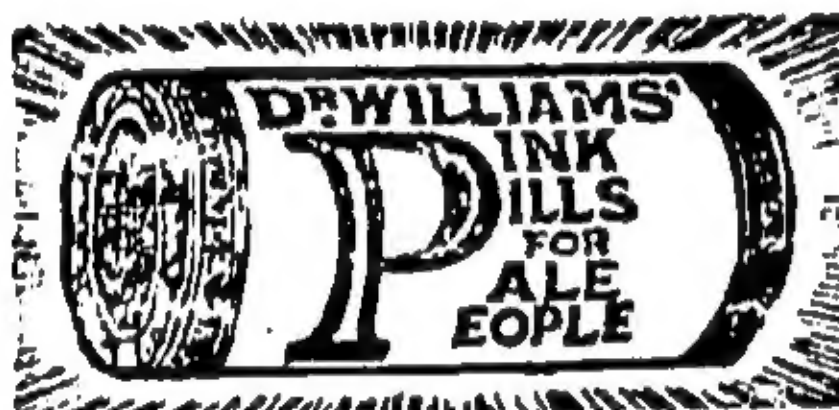

If this is your case, what is its reason? The answer almost surely is, the unsatisfactory condition of your blood. The prolonged spell of summer heat through which you have lately passed has impoverished your blood stream, thus reducing your digestive powers, debilitating your nerves and causing enfeeblement of your whole system.

To remedy matters, there is only one way—by replacing in your blood that which it has lost, restoring to it richness and strength, so that it in turn may revitalize enfeebled organs, rebuild debilitated nerves, revive lost appetite and spirits.

This can only be done by means of a reliable blood and nerve tonic, of which there is none surpassing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For over half-a-century Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been renowned throughout the world for their remarkable restorative powers. By rapidly revitalizing the blood, and creating new, rich, red blood at every drop, these Pills build up the nerves, restore appetite, invigorate the whole system. They are equally good for men as well as women.

Start taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now and see how soon they will give you fresh energy, cheerfulness, joy in the mere fact of living.

Sunflowers have been robbed for another new wonder-lotion. This is a creamy fluid for extra dry skins, and it contains also some powerful Egyptian herbs.

Applied after washing, it leaves a non-greasy surface which is just right for a powder base.

ACCESSORIES FOR TWEED SUITS

Twisted Velvet Has Many Uses.

FUR FOR TRIMMINGS

Tweed suits are given nickel and tortoise-shell fastenings as a change from chromium and wood. Velvet blouses which button severely up the front to the chin are worn beneath the tweed jacket.

The suit may have a belt of twisted velvet, or fur if the suit is trimmed with this. Some jackets have a nutria collar and "patches" of fur on the sleeves. The favourite place for these patches is at the wrist, and on the inside, just to be different.

Twisted velvet is put also as a trimming for woollen day frocks. One of black wide-ribbed Angora has a strip of black velvet twisted round the neck and another at the waist.

GIFT FOR THE BRIDE

A cocktail set fit for a bride has a black glass tray bordered with chromium. The glasses are of silvered glass.

WHITE CELLULOID PAPER FLOWERS.

Attractive Decorations.

White celluloid paper flowers are effective, especially in a black-and-white room.

They make arum lilies, apple blossom, and cabbages of this. The cabbage is "life-size," and is placed on a slab of frosted glass or mirror for a dinner table centre-piece.

Flare-Back Coat In New Guise

Add Thickness Above
The Waist.

The flare-back jacket of last season has come back in a new version, one which is full all the way round, with a deep box-pleat in the centre of the back.

It has a grown-up sister which is a trifle longer than three-quarter length and is not quite so full, and a near relation in a jacket with a hood effect.

We shall look thicker above the waist if this line succeeds.

NEW CORSET FOR SLIM WOMEN.

Special Woven Fabric.

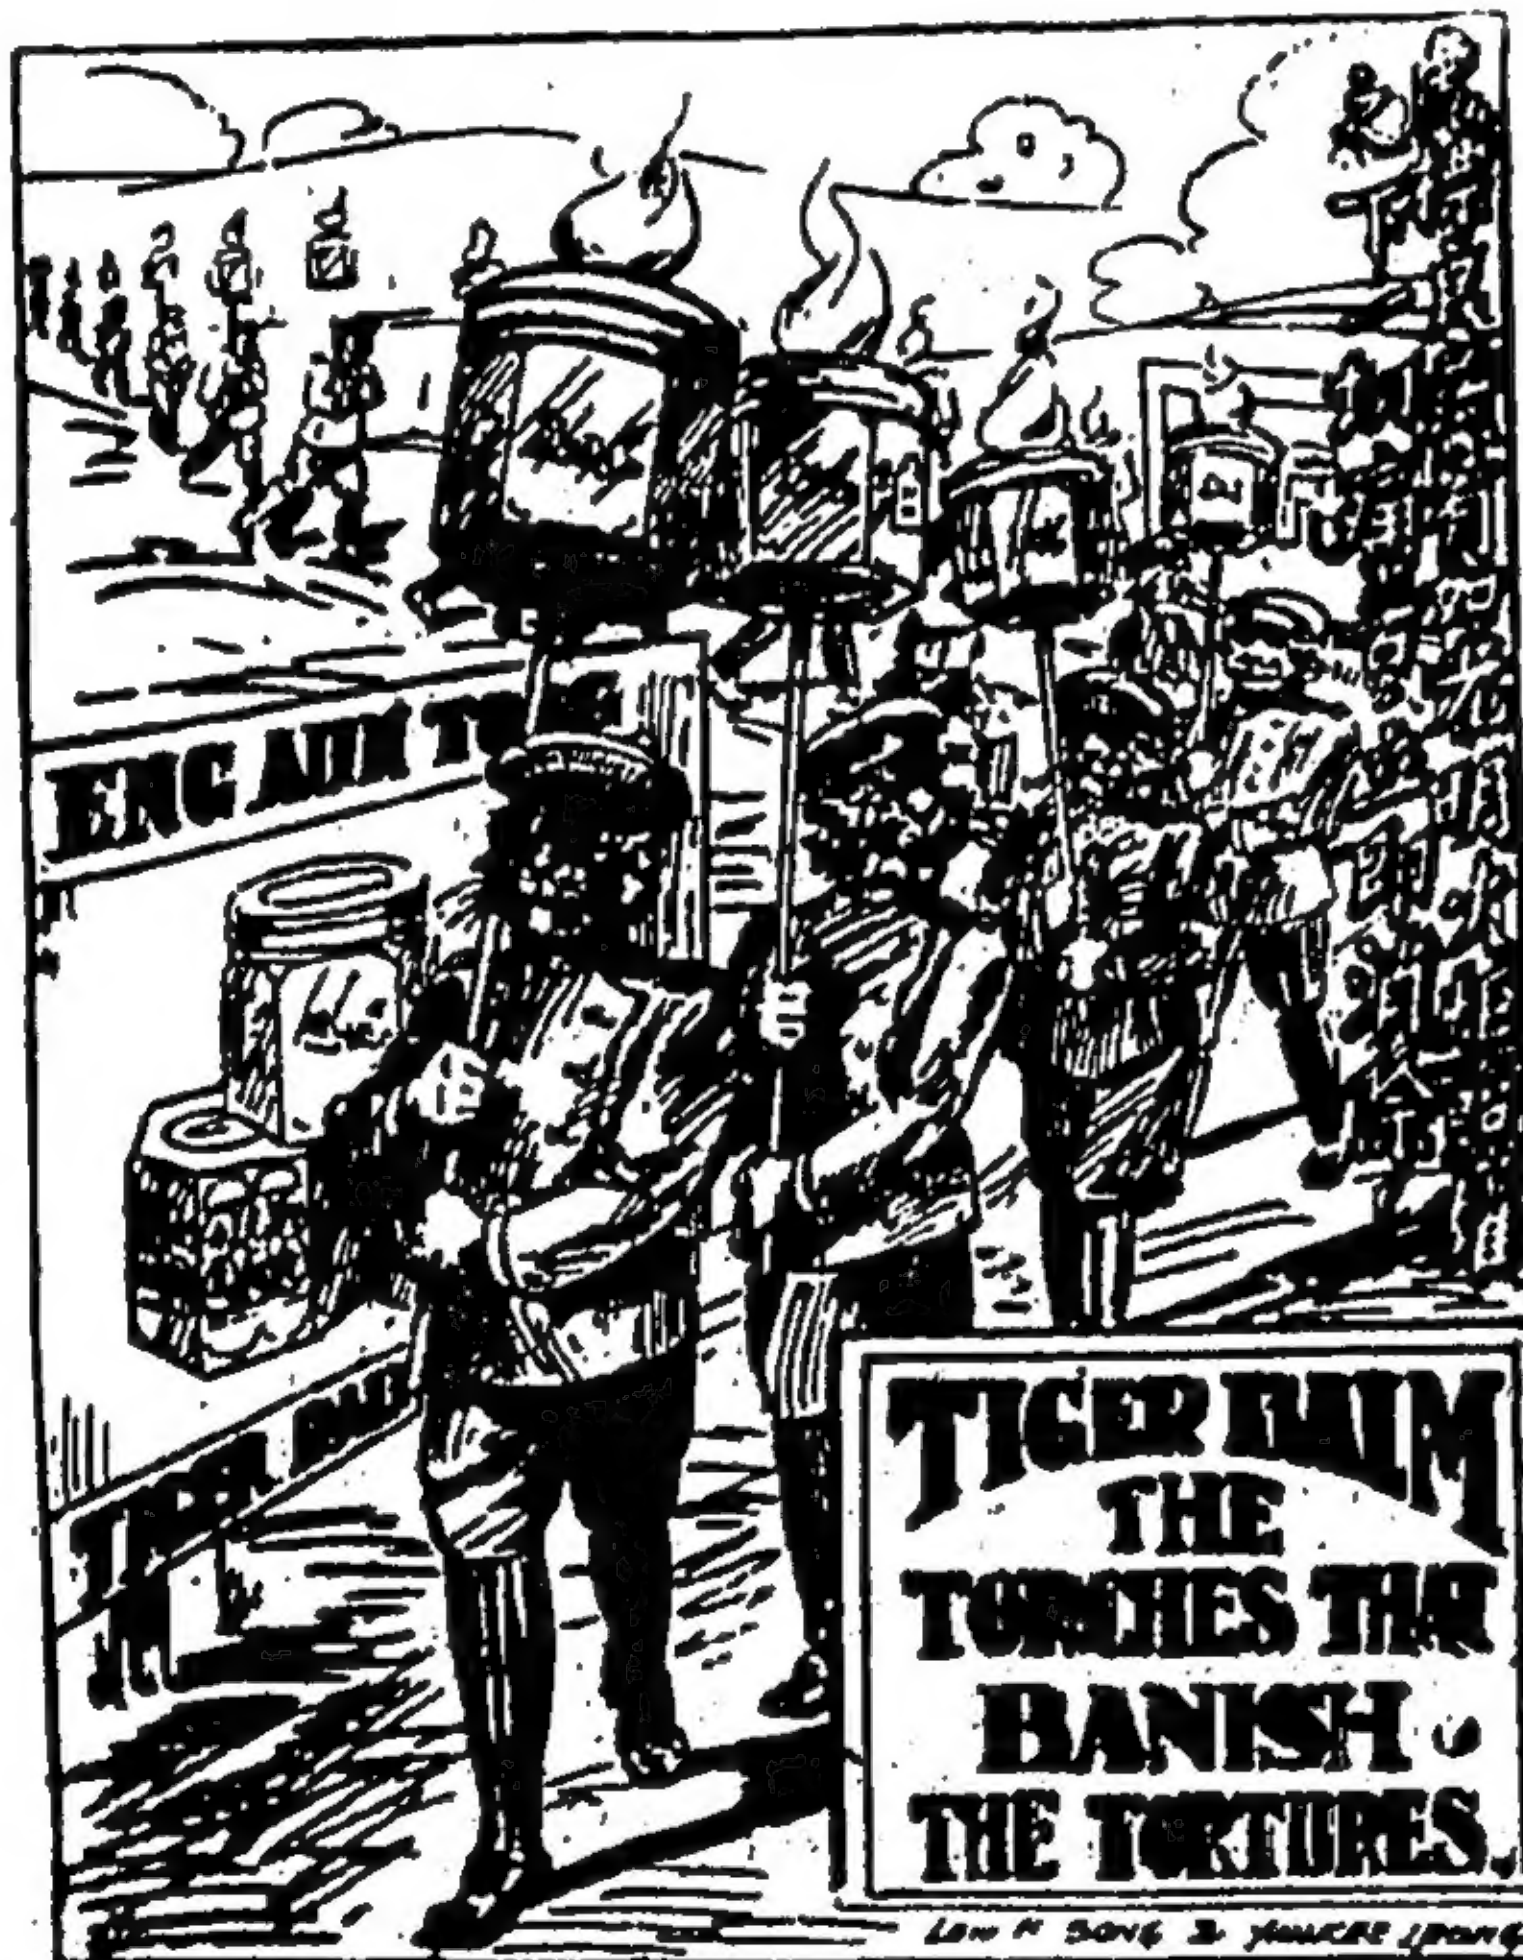

There is a new kind of brassiere-corset for women who have reduced wisely and well and want to stay slim.

This corset looks like a close-fitting underslip, for it is fastened down the back and made of specially woven fabric—not elastic.

A lace-embroidered flounce of chiffon is added to the end of the corset, hiding the unsightly suspender.

NOVEL ASHTRAYS

Ashtrays grow like dogs' drink-ing-troughs. The newest, propelled across the carpet with the foot, is made of clear glass an inch thick, and is in the shape of an elephant's hoof.

(This series of articles is based on Culbertson's system of bidding).

THE FORCING PRINCIPLE

Overcall in Opponents' Suit.

Two forcing situations occur in overcalling in suits previously bid by opponents. These depend upon whether opponents or partnership hands have opened the bidding. The most frequent of these is the immediate overcall in an opponent's opening suit, which demands that partner respond, and which is forcing until game has been reached. This situation naturally requires an exceptionally strong hand both in honours and distribution values, generally only slightly less than for an opening bid of two in a suit.

However, an immediate overcall in an opponent's bid may be made on a hand containing slightly more than 4 honour tricks, and either a single powerful suit or a two-suiter. This bid generally guarantees control of the first round in the adversary bid, either an Ace or a void, but many even be made with a singleton.

Example: If South opens the bidding with "One Diamond," West can bid "Two Diamonds" with the following hand:

Spade A J 10 4 3 Diamonds -

Heart A K Q J Clubs K Q J 3

Inferential Forcing Bids

These bids arise from the logical bidding situations, and have as object to keep the bidding low after partner has shown sign of strength, in order not to shut-out any chance of game at "Three No-trump" by any unnecessary jump.

Such situations generally arise when the partner of opening bidder responds with "Two No-trump" (either at once gradually), and his partner reopens the bidding with a new suit. Also when partner of opening bidder raises the bid made, and opening hand reopens the bidding with a new suit.

For instance:

South North

1 Heart 1 Spade

2 Diamonds 2 N T (not

3 Diamonds or 3 Hearts forcing) or 3 Spades (all forcing) or—

South North

1 Heart 3 N T

4 Diamonds (forcing)

or—

SOUTH NORTH

1 Spade 2 N T (not forcing)

3 Diamonds 3 Spades

(forcing)

(forcing)

In all situations such as above, the bidding must not be passed until game is reached.

The following is an example of the responding hand making an inferential forcing bid:

SOUTH NORTH

1 Spade 2 Diamonds

2 N T 3 Clubs (forcing)

(forcing)

The inference is that North, by reopening the bidding in a new suit, desires game, but does not wish to shut-out a bid of "Three

No-trump" by jumping right away into "Four Clubs." Had North bid

"Three Diamonds" only, it would have been a sign to stop—the bidding.

Another inferential forcing bidding situation may occur with a non-biddable suit. For example:

South North

1 Heart 1 N T

2 N T 3 Spades

(forcing)

The inference from North's No-trump response is that he does not hold a biddable suit. His subsequent bid of "Three Spades" is therefore made on either K 10 8 2 or A 10 7 2 or Q J 3 2, or some similar combination.

Another inferential forcing situation is the forcing pass. The following is a typical situation, in which the partner is expected to bid again after opening hand's

pass:

South West North East

1 N T Double Redouble 3 H

Pass

South, in this situation, is forced to pass in order to enable North to double East's bid of "The Hearts." If he holds trump tricks in hearts, South does not wish to double East's bid as he holds no trump tricks in hearts. He

Something Nude in Weddings

This unusual wedding ceremony, shown in progress, took place recently at the "Elysia" nudist colony, near Lake Elsinore, Cal. The happy couple, Susie Wise and Jim Goodman, take the marital vows as the Rev. Clarke Irvine pronounces them man and wife. At left, Constance Allen, bridemaid, and at right, James Mack, best man. All wore their "birthday suits."

GOVERNMENT STAYS ITS HAND

Murderers Sought By Missionaries.

AUSTRALIA'S ACTION

Canberra, F.C.T.

Contemplated action by the Federal Government to arrest aboriginal murderers in Northern Australia is to be deferred until an endeavour has been made by missionaries to induce the murderers to surrender.

The Minister for the Interior, Mr. Perkins, said that he had received a telegraphic report from Mr. H. C. Brown, Secretary to the Department, in regard to the Caledon Bay aborigines. As a result of Mr. Brown's report, he had decided to accept the offer made by the Church Missionary Society of Australia to send a small party of experienced missionaries to approach the aborigines with a view to establishing a better understanding between the natives and the Government, and, if possible, to arrange for the handing over of the aborigines responsible for the murders committed.

No action whatever would be taken by the Government to arrest the natives implicated in the murder of the Japanese or Constable McColl until the missionary party had completed its operations, and negotiations with the Caledon Bay aborigines.—Reuter.

equally does not wish to make another bid and possibly shut out a strong double by North.

These inferential bids are most interesting as they assure a game at some bid, in case partner can rebid (make a new kind of bid).

They are made on hands not quite strong enough for a forcing jump take-out (which requires at least 3½ honour tricks) or a forcing jump rebid (requires 5 honour tricks).

Forcing No-trump Overcall.

This forcing bid is made against opponents' preemptive bid of four. It is made on a powerful freakish hand in cases when a penalty double would be of less value than a practically certain game at doubler's own bid.

Should opening hand bid for instance, "Four Spades," and second hand overcall with "Four No-trump," this bid is forcing and partner must not pass. It guarantees practically a certainty of game in any suit with the exception of spades provided partner holds a four-card suit, besides which it saves a round of bidding. It would be made with the following hands:—

Spades -

Hearts A K Q x x

Diamonds A K J 10

Clubs A Q J x

or

Spades x

Hearts A K Q x

Diamonds A K 10 9

Clubs A K Q J

the four and five No-trump,

these bids are forcing at least

Mexican Association Has 85 Members.

Mexico City.

Mexican bullfighters have formed a trade union to deal with questions of wages, competition and professional conduct.

Even the proud matadors have decided to join the movement, which was started by the humble members of the fraternity—the pickadors, the banderilleros and the monosabios.

So far the union has a membership of 85.—Reuter.

WALES ENTER "SUNDAY HERALD" INTERNATIONAL SOCCER FINAL

RACE FOR JUNIOR CRICKET LEAGUE TITLE

Bishop And Lescher In Big Club Stand.

REED SCORES FIRST CENTURY

Late Declaration By I.R.C.

(By ATHOLE).

BRIGHT batting by W. C. B. Sparrow, who hit five boundaries in his 27, enabled the junior league champions to beat the Royal Navy by 69 runs at the Valley yesterday.

Receiving resistance from only J. Lewis (27) and L. A. C. Cagby (12), who added 30 for the third wicket, S. Abbas (5 for 33) and W. K. Way (4 for 18) dismissed the Navy for 67. Way actually took his four wickets for 5 runs.

After losing their first three wickets for 22 runs the later Craigengower batsmen scored consistently well to total 136. Cagby was the only bowler to trouble them and he had only 7 overs in which he clean bowled two batsmen and had two behind the wicket decisions.

Good Captaincy.

Handling his attack in a masterly manner J. E. Noronha, the Reclio skipper, is to be complimented on dismissing the Royal Engineers for the paltry total of 54.

No fewer than five bowlers took part in the dismissal which occupied 20 overs.

W. A. Reed and H. Alva added 28 for the Reclio's first wicket before the latter stepped in front of a fast one from Spr. Tucker after scoring 7. Joined by E. Soares, Reed proceeded to play himself in and the pair added the necessary runs for a nine wicket triumph in a second wicket partnership of 36 of which Soares claimed 13.

Reed and P. M. N. da Silva added 73 for the third wicket before Silva was bowled by Tucker for 31.

Displaying a rock-like defence and a keen eye for the loose ball Reed registered the first League century, hitting thirteen boundaries in his undefeated knock for 102, scored out of 184.

Tucker never at any period of the innings showed his best form, but he returned the best bowling figures of 3 for 54 in 18 overs. Curiously enough there was not a maiden over during the innings.

The Police bowling came in for harsh treatment against the Club at the Valley, only seven batsmen being dismissed for 214 runs.

A. K. Mackenzie, the Club skipper, hit no fewer than eight boundaries in his 35, while R. S. W. Patterson scored only boundaries in his 28.

C. W. E. Bishop, who hit nine boundaries in his 60 retired scored out of 170, was associated in a big stand with E. P. Lescher (85), for the fourth wicket, the pair adding 116 runs before Bishop retired.

Though ending up with 5 for 62, F. Mintey took the wickets of Lescher, L. E. Lamert, A. D. Lowson, and J. E. Hunter for 20 runs.

Going in at the fall of the first wicket at 11 W. L. Clarke played a plucky innings for 48 not out, scored out of 101, the effort, however, proving unavailing in the face of A. D. Lowson (5 for 46) and C. W. E. Bishop (4 for 32).

Clarke had a 5 and seven boundaries credited to him. He also kept wicket in a very promising manner, stumping three batsmen and allowing only 14 bytes off loose bowling in a total of 214.

Slow Scoring.

A late declaration by K. Nasarin was mainly responsible for the drawn game between the I.R.C. and the K.C.C. at Sookunpoo, but it could hardly have been blamed for the slow rate of 28 in 72 minutes by the visitors. Losing half their

Miss Britain III's Record Attempt

Mr. Hubert Scott-Paine established a new unofficial world record for a single-engined boat over a mile in Southampton water. In Miss Britain III he covered a mile course at 102.105 m.p.h. in the opposite direction his speed was 98.234 m.p.h. Mr. Scott-Paine and his mechanic, Mr. Gordon Thomas are thus the first men to travel at more than 100 miles an hour on sea water. (S. & G.)

No Hockey Encounter Lost.

SEVEN SOCCER TRIUMPHS

(By JOCK)

Since their arrival from Shanghai less than two months ago the Argylls Detachment have done very well on the sports field their record to date being:

	P.	W.	L.	D.	For	Agst
Football	12	7	5	3	32	24
Hockey	11	9	2	2	38	7

Their junior Football team have won one and lost one and their junior hockey eleven shared six goals with the R. A. S. C.

wickets for under 20 runs the K.C.C. never at any period of the game attempted to score runs.

George Lee, probably one of the oldest players in the League took 6 for 60 in 17 overs during the L.R.C. innings of 166 for 7.

P. O. Dunne who played two seasons ago and who returned recently from Singapore, made his debut in this game. I was surprised he was not given a trial with the ball as he can send down a very fair medium-paced delivery.

The Junior League Cricket Table To Date.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
I.R.C.	5	3	1	1	10

Voller	3	0	3	0	0
R.A.M.C.	2	0	1	0	0
R.E.	1	0	1	0	0

In a League in which none of the ten games played have been drawn W. A. Reed's 102 not out for the Reclio against the Royal Engineers is the best score to date, and L. A. C. Cagby's 6 for 2 for the Navy against the Civil Service is the best bowling feat.

Second Successive Mamak Defeat.

PEGG SCORES R.E. GOAL

THE holidays have not proved very kind to the St. Andrew's Club. They suffered their second defeat on Sunday when erratic shooting in the circle enabled the Royal Engineers to secure a lone goal margin.

A goal by Pegg in the first half has almost dashed all the Saints' hopes for the championship held by the Radio. In their last match they were beaten by H.M.S. Medway.

SMASHING TRIUMPH OVER ENGLAND

WIN 6 TO 2 AFTER LEADING 4-0 AT INTERVAL

FORTEY RECORDS "HAT TRICK"

(BY SPOT KICK)

CAUSING A MILD SURPRISE BY ELIMINATING SCOTLAND IN THE FIRST ROUND OF THE "SUNDAY HERALD" INTERNATIONAL CHARITY SOCCER CUP, WALES PROVIDED A SENSATION YESTERDAY ON THE CLUB GROUND WHEN THEY ENTERED THE FINAL ROUND BY A 6 TO 2 TRIUMPH OVER ENGLAND AFTER LEADING 4 TO 0 AT THE INTERVAL. THEY WILL MEET THE WINNERS OF TO-DAY'S GAME BETWEEN CHINA (HOLDERS) AND PORTUGAL.

Wales were represented by the full league team of the South Wales Borderers and it was because they played as a team that they won so easily. They were much quicker on the ball; each man playing with perfect understanding; and good positional play was the feature of their game.

They were quickly off the mark and by the interval had established a four goals lead. Thereafter exchanges were of a more even nature, though Wales always had the game well in hand.

The England players were just eleven footballers. There was a lack of combination, and only Pile and Combey really played up to their reputations. Their halves were slow and the wingers were starved—it was not until late in the game that Hudspeth was given a reasonable pass.

China Should Beat Portugal

International Soccer Championship

CHINA beat Portugal by six clear goals last season.

They are expected to enter the Final Round of the Sunday Herald International Soccer Charity Cup this afternoon on the Club ground, but the margin is not likely to be as great.

The following are the teams:—
Portugal: R. Marques (St. Joseph's), R. Silva-Neto (Reclio) and L. Gomes (St. Joseph's); Marques (St. Joseph's), N. Beltrao (St. Joseph's) and J. Elms (St. Joseph's);
B. Gosano (St. Joseph's), A. Ward (St. Joseph's), A. V. Gosano (St. Joseph's), (Captain), L. Rocha (St. Joseph's) and J. Goncalves (Reclio); Reserves: E. Marques (Reclio), S. Soares (St. Joseph's) and G. Gutierrez (Reclio).

China: Wong Wing (S.C.A.A.); Leung In-chun and Li Tin-sung (S.C.A.A.); Hor Chor-yin (C.A.A.), Leung Wing-chui and Lee Kwok-wai (S.C.A.A.); Yeung Shui-yick (S.C.A.A.), Ho Ka-keung (C.A.A.), Fung King-cheong, Tam Kong-pak (S.C.A.A.) and Fung King-yu (C.A.A.).
Reserves: Au Kim-tung (C.A.A.) and Tong Kwai and Tay Que-ling (S.C.A.A.).

Combey had a tremendous amount of work to do, and, although he picked the ball out of the net six times, he saved many goal-scoring shots. Pile was the better of the two English backs, Strange making costly mistakes behind Yeomans, who was introduced in place of Allen and who gave a poor display. Yeomans could do nothing right, his poor passing leaving extra work to Strange, and Matthias made the most of his opportunities. Cork and Purkins played listlessly, their main fault lying in their passing.

The Forwards achieved little. Bickford was the better winger, but he and Strange were not so effective as might have been expected. Their display in general was overshadowed by the splendid tackling of the Welsh halves.

The Borderers gave one of their best displays of the season and if they can reproduce this form against the finalists China or Portugal, they should be certain winners of the Cup.

Morrison and Mullane played with perfect understanding, and Smith was rarely troubled. Mullane was the cooler of the two, but both were sure in their kicking. Podmore was unbeatable in the centre and Howe was consequently out of the picture, while Wallace and Jones tackled and passed with splendid judgement.

The Welsh forwards proved a great line, their direct open methods had the English defence at a loss and even. The wings passed and interpassed with speed and accuracy and Fortey positioned himself for the inevitable pass with great success. Hazelwood was the outstanding forward, He made some fine openings for Duncan and Fortey, while on the other wing Harris schemed successfully to make good use of the speed of Matthias.

There were about 800 spectators present when Wales kicked off. England had a good chance to open the scoring when Hudspeth flashed across a fine centre which was missed by the inside men only for Bickford to shoot over. Duncan then raced away down the wing and cut in to test Combey with a fast grounder. The Welshmen were playing better football and took the lead after Hazelwood had shot across an open goal, Matthias passing back for FORTEY to shoot past Combey. Five minutes later Wales went further ahead, good work on the left, ending in FORTEY scoring with a good shot.

SOUTH CHINA TRIUMPH

TAM NETS THREE GOALS

Plays Without Left Boot But Scores.

BALL AND NORTH IMPRESS

(By SPOT KICK)

South China easily accounted for the East Lancs in their premier league encounter at Sookunpoo on Sunday, scoring four times without reply. Had the South China forwards exerted themselves, the score would have been much bigger, for they did exactly as they pleased.

The champions were forced to rearrange their team, Wong Wing, their brilliant goalkeeper, appearing at outside right with Tay Quee Liang leading the forward line. Chin Kwok Lum made a reappearance at inside right, and Pau Ka Ping kept goal. Tay was quite at home in his new position, and combined well with Tam, but was selfish at times when a pass would have been to better advantage. The left wing, Tam and Yeung Shui Yick, were by far the most dangerous indulging in some exceptionally clever short passing bouts.

The halves were good, Leung Wing Chui being outstanding. Li Tin Sang started rather shakily, but rapidly settled down to a steady game which was featured by first-time clearances. Pau Ka Ping dealt confidently with the few shots that came his way, but was never seriously troubled throughout the match.

BELTRAO'S GIVES BEST DISPLAY

Cork Stands Out For Leaders

CORK was the outstanding player against the Artillery and held the R. A. forwards well in check. Well supported on both flanks by Dudley and Bett, the Lincolns half-back trio defeated many promising movements.

McGuinness was the pick of the forwards, although the Ridley-Hocquard wing was dangerous when on the move. All four substitutes, Roden, Deacon, Edmonson and Clayton gave creditable performances, and the absence of the regular players was not very noticeable.

THE Borderers were a much better side than the Club their forwards showing good understanding, and combining well together.

FORTEY was a brilliant leader and kept his line moving well. Podmore played a great game for the winners, sending accurate passes out to the wings and being outstanding in defence.

The Artillery pulled off the unexpected by defeating the Borderers in the Second Division on Saturday.

THEY were strong in defence. Price and Lewis being particularly safe at back, while Woods dealt confidently with the few shots that were sent in.

(By OUTSIDE LEFT).

HOPKINS should have scored a number of goals, being favourably positioned on numerous occasions, but relying more on speed than direction, he missed badly on two occasions.

The Borderers also had many chances, and Herbert on one occasion had the goal at his mercy, but shot over the bar.

GENERALLY speaking, the Borderers were much below their usual standard. Passes continually went astray, and the defence were under heavy pressure for the majority of the game.

INSTEAD of having matters all their own way as was expected, the Navy had to fight hard before they could get the better of the Reclio, an early goal for the Reclio, making all the difference to the game.

IN the first half the game was very even, and, but the splendid defence of Jones and West, the Reclio might easily have crossed over with a useful lead.

THE Navy settled down to business after the interval and were definitely on top, a fine display of goal-keeping by Marques preventing a huge score.

Athletic's Misfortune

The Reclio defence had a grueling time, but Silva-Neto and Boreas came out of the ordeal with flying colours.

THE Navy wingers paved the way to victory, Skinner on the left being the outstanding player on the field, his runs and centres being a continual source of danger.

Beltrao gave by far his best display of the season against the Athletic and Portugal will welcome his return to form in readiness for the Sunday Herald International Semi-final to-day. He refused to be beaten and set his forward on the move well-judged passes.

THE Athletic played exceedingly well until they lost Ho Ka-keung. Their quick passing and good positional play belied their position in the League and with a really good marker in the forward line they would have given the Saints a harder fight.

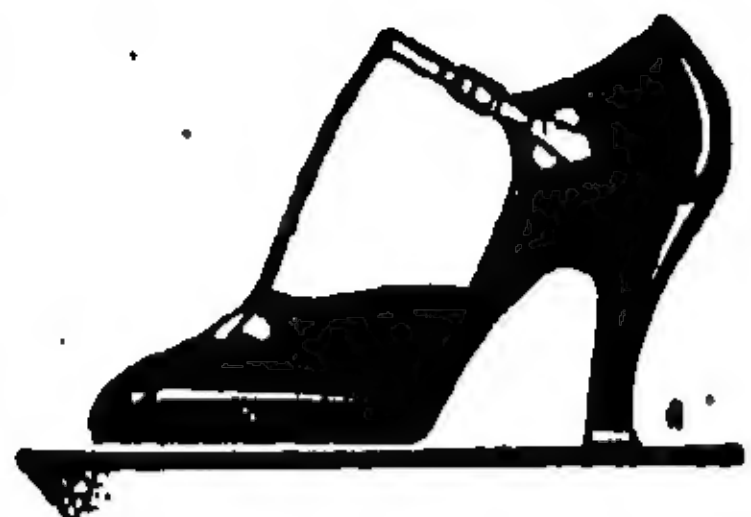

HO Cho-yin was a tower of strength as a pivot and Wong Sik-wing made a good partner to Mak Shui-hon.

Y. M. Tai Po and Lai Sin Wing were companions for South China's second eleven against the Navy, while Wong Ka Kai performed well between the sticks.

SMASHING TRIUMPH
OVER ENGLAND

Wales were definitely on top now and Combey made a great save from Hazelwood. Strange then miskicked and left Harris with an open goal, but Combey again saved well.

England went away. Howe and Langmead combining well, but Morrison intercepted and passed to Hazelwood who sent FORTEY through to register the 'hat-trick'.
The game was very one-sided and Fortey took the ball on the wing and centred for HAZEL-WOOD to head the ball in for the fourth goal. Wales still kept on the offensive and England's defence was sorely tried, all the Welsh forwards attempting shots at goal.

After the change-over England improved, but there was a marked difference in the two methods of attack—the Welsh-men looked liked scoring goals by the way they drew the defence, while at the other end Mullane and Morrison covered effectively.

Nevertheless after twelve minutes, England reduced the lead, Langmead giving HOWE a nice forward pass which the leader did not waste. Fortey was again through when Strange hurried himself at the Welshman and saved at the expense of a corner. He was injured in the attempt and was forced to leave the field, during which period Wales regained their four goals lead when neat forward touches resulted in MATTHIAS sending in a shot which was deflected by Pile past Combey.

Combey made two glorious saves from Harris and then Howe went through, but his well-placed shot did not have enough power behind it.

After 35 minutes Bickford made a splendid recovery and crossed for LANGMEAD to head against Smith's feet and score from the rebound.

Play was very dull at this period, Wales being content with their lead and the English forward movements lacking combination.
Near the end Matthias ran clear of Yeomans and Strange and centered for HAZELWOOD to crash
the ball into the roof of the net.

England—Combey (Artillery); Pile
(Police), S. Strange (Club); Purkins (Navy), Cork (Lincolns) Yeomans (A.
& S.R.); Hudspeth, Langmead
(Navy), Howe, E. Strange and Bickford (Club).
Wales—Smith, Mullane, Morrison,
Wallace, Podmore, Jones, Matthias,
Harris, Fortey, Hazelwood and Duncan (Borderers).

Aviation and Motoring

AN AMPHIBIAN RACER NOW

A Russian Builds Dual Purpose Fast Plane.

CRUISING SPEED FOR 270 MILES PER HOUR

The Severky Aircraft Corporation, whose president and chief engineer is Major Alexander de Severky, is bringing to completion one of the most interesting amphibian planes yet devised in this era of all-metal construction and design.

The former commander in the Imperial Russian Navy was charged during the war with the defence of Baltic Sea areas against German air attacks. He led pursuit units over the ocean in the days when a flying boat or a seaplane that would cruise at 75 miles an hour was fast. Since then he has pondered the possibility of building an amphibian with the attributes of a fast pursuit plane and the seaworthiness of a boat. The result is the racy looking monoplane on floats, with retractable wheels slotted through the floats, feet 8 inches and a height of 9 feet 3 inches. The wing construction, developed more than two years ago by the designer, has since been adopted by other experimenters in all-metal construction. It consists of a double skin, the outer smooth and riveted to the inner corrugated skin. This inner skin is further reinforced with duralumin bracing, but the conventional rib and spar design, so expensive in wings of varying chord, is absent.

Severky Optimistic Regarding Several Flights

Working with Severky on the ship are Michael Grezor, designer of the Bird biplane among others and an expert in aerodynamic theory; Alexander Karvelli, another former Russian engineer, and Michael Bonlar, engineer in charge of actual installation and construction.

If final tests have not been made in time for the Bendix race in connection with the National Air Races, Major de Severky will probably go after both East to West and West to East transcontinental records, as well as the 3,000-kilometre record for amphibians. Although designed for military uses, the plane is also adapted for mail and fast passenger service, with a load of three passengers besides the pilot.

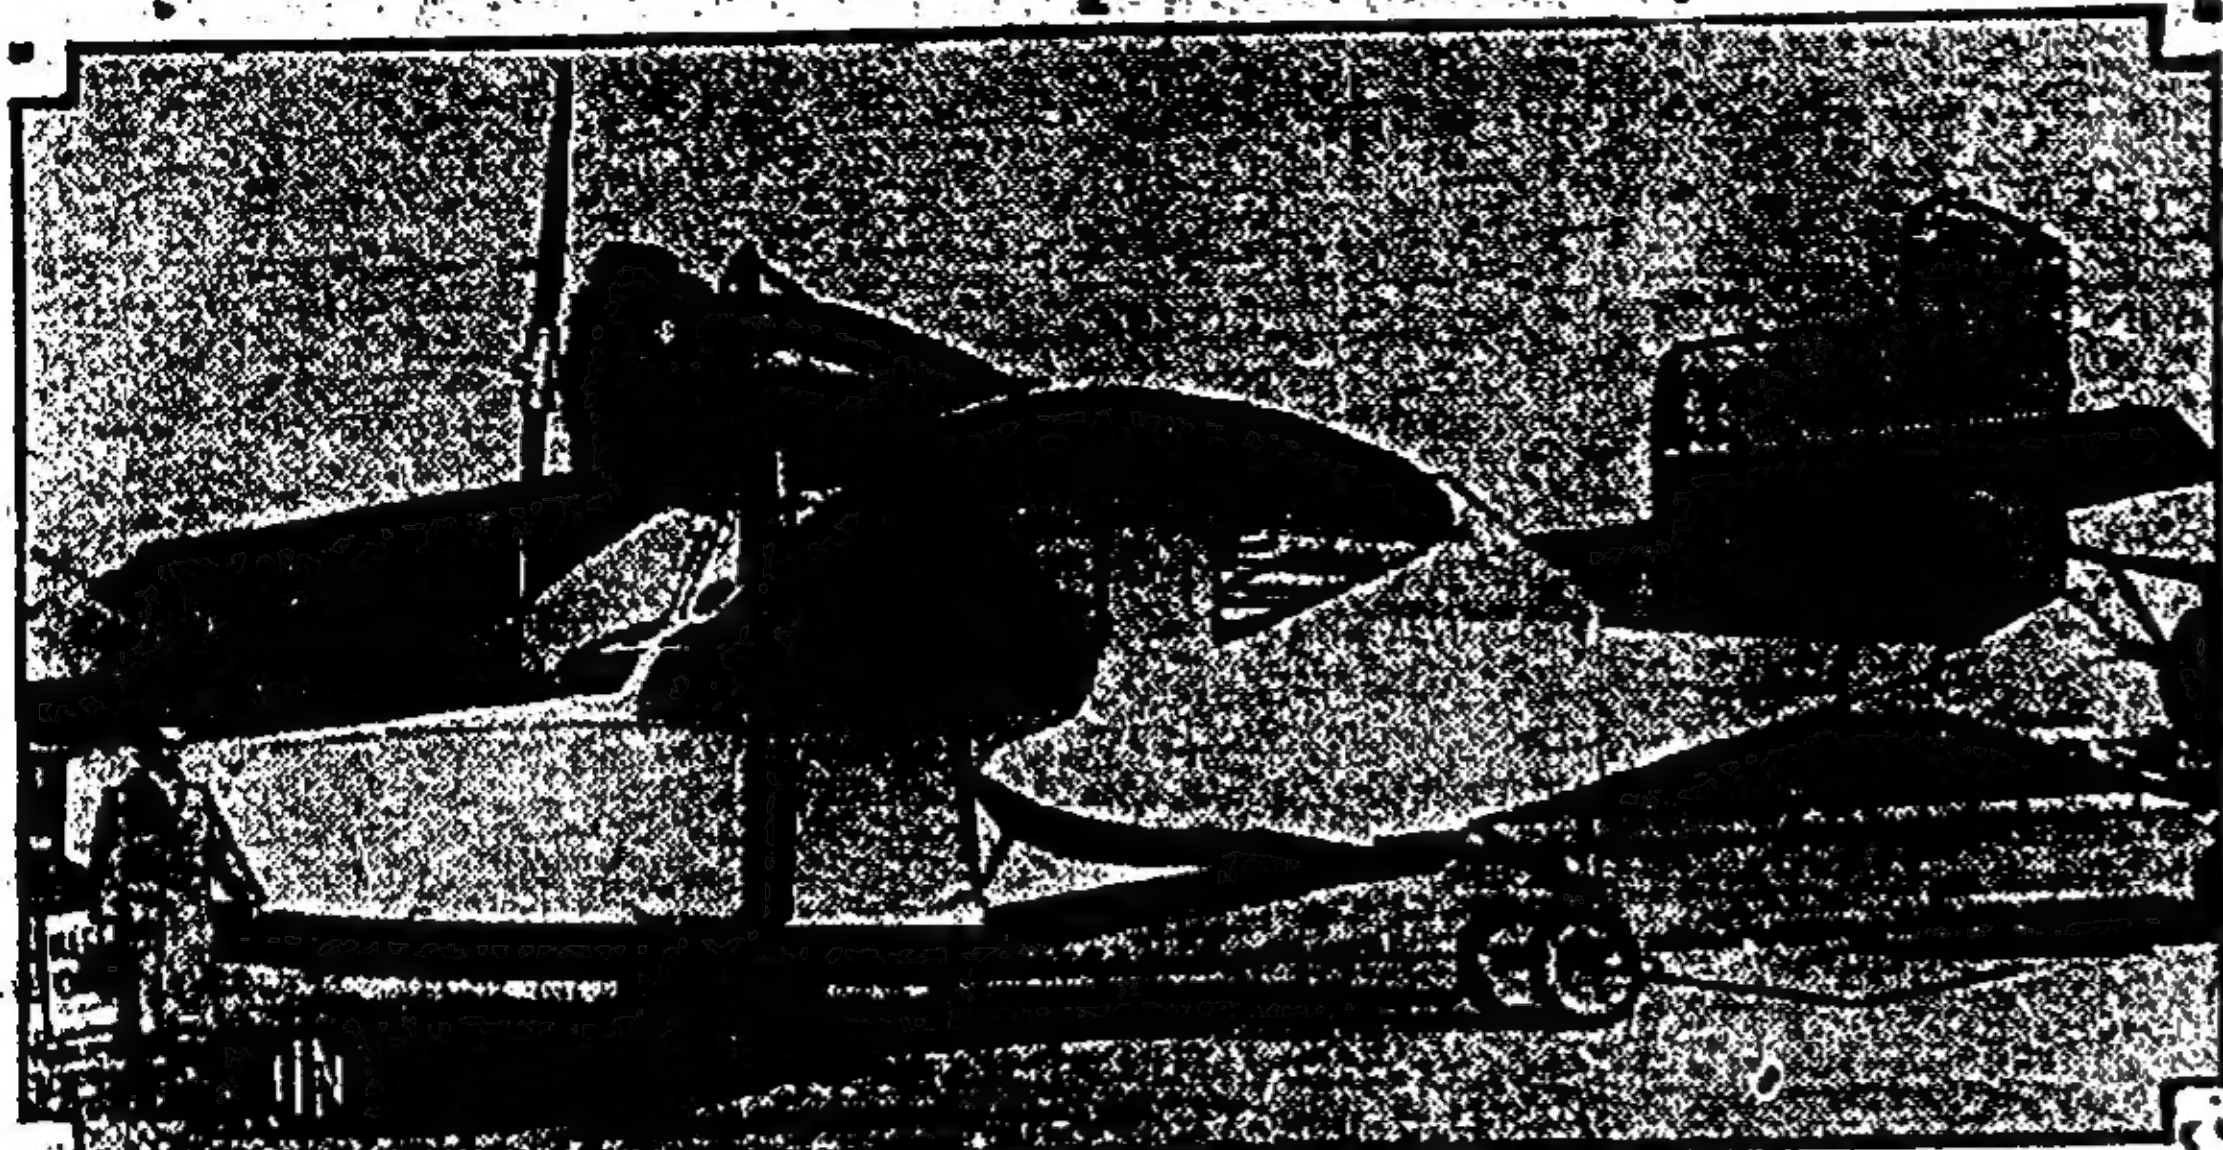

MOTOR-MAKING IN JAPAN

Tokyo.

The Japan Automobile Manufacturing Co. will be formally inaugurated soon with capital of ¥10,000,000, of which ¥2,500,000 has been paid up.

The Japanese Industrial Co. and the Tohatsu Casting Co. are the principal stockholders.

World's Fastest Amphibian Ready to Fly

After months of secret work, Grover Loring, noted designer of seaplanes, displays what he regards as the last word in amphibian aircraft at Roosevelt Field, L. I. The flying boat contains many new departures in construction and is expected to be the fastest commercial amphibian in the world. Hydraulic brakes, a variable pitch propeller and streamlined fuselage are a few of the outstanding features.

Nations In 13,000 Miles Flight

Britain Has No Machine Ready To Win

By WILLIAM COURTENAY

Who accompanied Capt. T. Neville Stack, A.F.C., on his Blackpool to India and back flight last summer, and who has organised big flights for Jim and Amy Molison and Sir Alan Cobham.

London.

Next year will see the most spectacular event in the history of aviation. It is an air race across four continents for 13,000 miles from England to Melbourne. It will be far more dramatic and spectacular than the Italian formation flight to Chicago. It will provide more thrills than any aeronautical event yet staged. It will bring England and Australia within four days of each other.

Insufficient attention has yet been given to this great forthcoming event. Its importance to British aviation cannot be exaggerated. For the sad fact is that at the moment, as far as I know, we have not got one civil or privately owned aircraft which by the conditions of the race could enter.

The race is to take place in connection with the Centenary celebrations of Melbourne.

Mr. MacRobertson, a patriotic Australian, has deposited £15,000 in prize money with the Lord Mayor of Melbourne.

The race is to take place on October 20, 1934, or thereabouts, and all entries must reach the Centenary Council by June 1, 1934, and the competitors must reach Australia in sixteen days.

There is to be firstly a championship race, for which the first prize is £10,000 and a gold cup value £500. A second and third prize of £1,500 and £500 respectively will also be awarded.

There will, secondly, be a handicap race, for which two prizes of £2,000 and £1,000 are offered.

Three Days' Food

Each machine must carry sufficient food and water to maintain life for three days, and some approved flotation gear for all members of the crew. This applies to both races. Thus, because of the load to be carried, the 100-m.p.h. light airplane will not be able to enter the race.

Pilots in the championship race will have to check in at Bagdad, Calcutta, Singapore, Darwin, and Charleville.

As this is an open race it will be obvious that the pilot making the fastest time will be the winner. Pilots will not want to land at any alternate aerodromes beyond the minimum five. As these are 2,000 miles and more apart, the aircraft competing must have a range of about 2,500 miles.

We have not to the best of my knowledge one airplane in England yet with such a range except the specially tanked Fairey-Napier long-range monoplane of the R.A.F. and the specially tanked Dragon Moth of the Molisons.

Both of these, however, cruise at 100 m.p.h. or less, and neither could hope to win the race.

The handicap race will be judged on time spent between the start and the finish less the time allowed for checking in. This checking will be at intervals of 500 miles along the course.

All the flights which have been made between England and Australia have been completed by British or Australian airmen.

Nearly Ready

The airway to Australia is now almost fashioned. Imperial Airways have lately extended the India service to Calcutta. An air-liner has actually flown to Australia on survey work. The complete route will be in operation next year.

All these achievements are British, and as they should be. Yet when it comes to a great race of this description we may find the laurel won by foreigners.

In order that entries may be received in Australia by June 1934 we have to begin designing right away.

Our most likely type is the mail carrier just completed by Boulton and Paul for the Air Ministry. It can carry 1,000 pounds of mail for 1,000 miles and can cruise at well over 180 miles per hour.

But this range is insufficient for victory. Two pilots will be needed as a minimum crew. The range must be increased at the expense of the mail compartment in this case.

It is not yet known whether the Air Ministry would enter this machine, or whether the necessary range could be secured.

Meanwhile America already has one or two types which could enter, and walk away with the prize. She is certain to send over a strong team.

Germany is preparing aircraft for her ordinary services which will average 180 miles per hour, not

TROLLEY BEATS PETROL BUS.

Tests At Rotherham Prove Speeds.

According to "Motor Transport," a trolley bus had the better of a petrol bus in a test arranged by the general manager and engineer of the Rotherham Municipal Transport Department recently.

The test, which was largely one of acceleration, took place over a round trip of 9.90 miles. The steepest gradient was 1 in 7, and both vehicles were loaded so as to carry the same passenger weight.

The total number of stops made in the round trip was fifty-six, and the drivers were instructed to come to a dead stop at the predetermined stopping places and start away again as quickly as possible.

The petrol was started at 80 yards behind the trolley bus, which completed the round journey in 37 minutes 11 seconds, as compared with 42 minutes taken by the petrol bus.

When both vehicles were stopped at the bottom of a gradient the petrol bus arrived at the top approximately 300 yards behind the trolley vehicle, although it had started from the bottom of the hill behind it.

New Type Of Lorry For Soviet.

Moscow.

The Stalin automobile plant here has started the production of a new type of lorries, capable of operating under most difficult conditions, and along the roads not suitable for the ordinary lorries.

ACCELERATOR PEDAL POSITION

Standardisation Urged

In the interests of "Safety First" the suggestion has often been put forward that the relative position of the accelerator and brake pedals should be standardised, says a correspondent in "The Autocar."

Nothing has been done. Experienced drivers can easily have an accident when driving a different car (or cars) through non-standardisation.

Parking Charges On Public Roads.

Parking charges on a public road are "agin the law." In France, when certain towns tried this exacting dodge, motorists put up signs outside such towns reading "This is a robber town: Do not stop here or spend money in it."—"The Autocar."

U. S. MOTOR SALES

Detroit.

The sales of automobiles during the month of November, 1933, was estimated to be 115 per cent. greater than the sales during November, 1932; it was announced by R. L. Folk Co., business statisticians.

season. She already has a machine which can cruise at 200 to 220, and which can take passengers.

A new type is being constructed by Holland for her Amsterdam-Batavia service. Its top speed is estimated to be 224 miles per hour.

The only British airman who so far has decided to prepare a machine for this race is Captain T. Neville Stack, one of our pioneer airmen, who made the first light airplane flight to India in 1926.

Captain Stack hopes to make an extraordinary service which will average 180 miles per hour, not

Mr. Roosevelt's Policy.

The apparent contradictions of President Roosevelt's monetary policy have disconcerted "sound-money" advocates. Whatever Mr. Roosevelt may mean by "revaluing" the dollar, he has made it plain that the operation must wait until prices, particularly agricultural prices, have been restored to a remunerative level. That in the goal to attain which he is bending all his energies, and until it is attained he refuses to concern himself overmuch with the exchange value of the dollar in gold or in terms of the gold currencies. The people who want a permanent revaluation of the dollar before prices have been raised, he has said, putting the cart before the horse. It has sometimes during the past few weeks been speculatively assumed that his views on monetary policy were becoming more orthodox than some of his previous utterances would indicate; but it is now evident that he has moved very little, if at all, from the position he took up last July at the beginning of the World Conference, when he abruptly put a stop to the discussion of plans for stabilizing the exchanges. In the message which disconcerted the whole financial world at that time, and which provoked the representatives of the gold countries into refusing further participation, he declared his conviction that a sound internal economic system was a greater factor in the well-being of a nation than the price of its currency in terms of the currencies of other nations; he scoffed at the "old-fashioned" so-called international bankers; and he defined his policy in words almost identical with some of those he now uses. "Let me be frank," the message ran, "in saying that the United States seeks the kind of dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power as the dollar value we hope to attain in the near future. That objective means more to the good of other nations than a fixed ratio for a month or two in terms of the pound and the franc." From the one utterance as from the other it is almost an inevitable deduction that he regards the "commodity dollar"—what those who do not believe in it derisively call the "rubber dollar"—as the solution of America's monetary problem; though it is one which he does not intend to apply until prices have been restored. Roughly the idea, first put forward by Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale University, is that the dollar should always be exchangeable for gold, though not at a fixed parity. The gold content of the currency unit would be adjusted at fixed intervals in accordance with the price index of a representative selection of commodities, thus neutralizing the fluctuations in the value of gold and steadying the purchasing power of the currency. There are many complications in the scheme; there is, for example, a "gold-bulldog dollar" as well as a "goods dollar." One obvious objection is that there would be a perpetual fluctuation in the exchanges with foreign currencies based on an unvarying gold standard or on any other basis than the particular price index adopted for purposes of adjustment. Much would depend upon what commodities were taken into the reckoning, since the relative importance of different commodities is far from being the same in every country or even in every part of the same country. Moreover what matters to the individual producer or purchaser is not so much a general or average price level as the price of the particular commodity in which he is interested. It would not console a stock-breeder, for example, to tell him that the general price level was rising if he were being ruined by a disastrous fall in the price of meat. That, however, as the Germans would say, is all music of the future. Mr. Roosevelt's immediate task is to raise prices, particularly agricultural prices, before attempting to stabilize them. Such has been his proclaimed intention all along in order to lighten the burden of debt pressing upon all the producing elements of the nation. As a matter of fact he claims that he has already made considerable progress in this task. He declares, for example, not only that employment has been found for at least four million out of the twelve or thirteen million people who were without work a few months ago, but also that on an average the farmer is receiving more money by a third for his crops this year than in 1932. Prices, however, are now flagging, and in some commodities a great part of what had been gained has been lost within the past few weeks. In any case the rise has not been great enough or widespread enough to satisfy the Western farmers, who are now loudly proclaiming their discontent. They are clamouring for a drastic inflation of the currency as the only way of freeing themselves from their debts. They allege that the working of the National Recovery Act so far has only made their position worse, increasing the prices of what they have to buy more than the price of what they have to sell. It is impossible at the present stage to estimate the importance of this revolt; but there is no doubt that it is significant and that it is seriously embarrassing the Administration, which had already troubles enough in its efforts to control and to co-ordinate the economic activities of a hundred and twenty million people. The efficacy of the Roosevelt Plan is now being put to a critical test. Among many indications which justify anxiety the personality of the President remains the chief

Balbo Loses

General Balbo has lost the third round of his duel with Mussolini. His removal from the post of Air Minister, and appointment to the comparatively unimportant governorship of the African colony of Libya, can have no other meaning.

Surprise was expressed in some quarters that General Balbo, who has criticised Mussolini's policy on several questions, did not resign. The answer is that under the Fascist regime in Italy, as under the Bolshevik regime in Russia, members of the party who hold posts of State are not permitted to resign. They are appointed, transferred or dismissed.

Resignation is regarded as an act of insubordination, and is punished with imprisonment or exile.

Looking For Weather Secrets.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, veteran of many a set-to with the Arctic and Antarctic, son of an Australian sheep rancher—and a knight, through his fame as an explorer—is again on his way to the bottom of the world. Lady Wilkins, whom he married shortly before his trip to the Arctic by submarine two years ago, is now in the United States. Next time, she says, she will go along—necessary as ship's cook.

Sir Hubert's ruling passion is finding out what causes the weather. He believes the answer can be found in the polar regions.

Your Daily Smile.

THE TEST.

"Darling, will you be my wife?"

"Will you always let me do just what I like?"

"Certainly."

"Can mother live with us?"

"Of course, dear."

"Will you give up the club and always give me money when I ask for it?"

"Willingly, my pet."

"I'm sorry; I could never marry such an idiot."

HARD LINES!

Sultor: "You are the seventh girl to whom I have proposed without avail."

Girl: "Well, maybe if you wear one when making your eighth proposal you'll have better luck!"

INSULATION.

A broadcasting engineer returning from work met his eight-year-old son. Noticing that the child's finger was bandaged, the father asked the cause.

"I touched a wasp," said the child, "and the end wasn't insulated."

A DOUBLE SURPRISE.

Marjory: "Mummy, were you at home when I was born?"

Mother: "No, darling, I was staying with grandma in the country."

"Wasn't you awfully surprised when you heard about it?"

Facts You Did Not Know.

Exports of scrap iron and steel from the United States in the first five months this year were more than three times as great as in the similar period last year.

The recent completion of a landing stage at Cherbourg, France, has made it possible for trans-Atlantic liners to land passengers without the use of tender service.

For garage and service station use a machine has been invented that shakes an automobile and reveals rattles and squeaks not found by any other means and their location.

To save the expense of sharpening rock-drills bits have been invented that are cheap enough to throw away after being used at the end of drill rods.

Anchor of public confidence. There is no sign that he is in the least flustered or dismayed by the difficulties which beset him; not all of which have been unforeseen. And there is equally no sign yet of any diminution of the faith reposed in him personally by the people, however critical they may have become of some of the features of his policy and of some of the agencies of his Administration.

SECRETS BEHIND
FILM FACESNURSE IS GUARDIAN OF BEAUTIES

PROBLEMS OF THE "STARS"

(By Seton Margrave.)

The most important woman in Hollywood has never been seen in films. She was trained as a nurse in her native Sweden. She studied anatomy and massage there. For the past seven years she has been the creator and the guardian of the film beauty of Hollywood.

When you marvel at the grace and beauty of your most adored cinema star, you are more likely than not admiring yet another piece of living sculpture by Sylvia Ulbeck.

Sylvia Ulbeck moulds and massages beauty into faces and figures. She enforces an iron discipline of conduct.

She is the only person in Hollywood who possesses an infallible and devastating cure for that most prevalent of Hollywood diseases sometimes called the artistic temperament but which is probably best described as swelled head.

The stars of Hollywood listen to her meekly and obey her implicitly for the best of reasons. Sylvia Ulbeck has made and remade hundreds of famous film players. Those few who have been so unwise as to disregard her instructions have invariably taken a sudden dive into oblivion.

She tries to limit the number of her patients to twelve at any one time, but generally she has more, and every one is glad to pay her at the rate of £50 a week for treatment.

Even in Hollywood such a business must show results, and the most important of these results is that Sylvia Ulbeck has converted the neurotic Hollywood of silent film days into a centre in which the ideal of the sound mind in the sound body has become almost a religion.

The price that Hollywood pays for beauty is no longer the price of having a nose surgically remodelled or of having wrinkles or double chins erased. These things still happen, but they are not the beginning of the system of massage, exercise, and diet imposed by Sylvia Ulbeck.

Famous Patients

Her grateful patients include Norma Shearer, Ann Harding, Constance Bennett, Carole Lombard, Constance Cummings, Sidney Fox, Joan Bennett, Jean Harlow, Gloria Swanson, Betty Bronson, Marlon Davies, Ruth Chatterton.

One of the most interesting of her patients at the present moment is Anna Q. Nilsson, who is coming back to pictures after a long and serious illness.

Four years ago this loveliest of silent film stars was thrown from horseback and suffered a fractured hip. Night after night Sylvia Ulbeck visited the hospital in which Anna Q. Nilsson lay, and preserved not only her beauty but most probably also her life.

For this service, Sylvia Ulbeck refused to accept any payment. The feminine sergeant-major of Hollywood has a kind heart.

There are a fortunate few—samples of them are Katharine Hepburn, Dorothy Jordan, Karen Morely, and Heather Angel—whose only problem is to put on weight.

While others around them are condemned to sweetness and butterless diets, they eat steaks and pies and sweets, everything that comes along. They swim and play tennis and take all the strenuous exercise forbidden to those in search of beauty. But they are the exceptions and one day they may be the rules.

Heather Angel, for example, to Denis Phillips is Grade A. Denis Phillips is the make-up expert at Movietone City in Hollywood.

He puts all faces into one or other of three classes. Grade A, which takes 10 minutes for make-up; Grade B, which takes 25 minutes; Grade C, which takes 45 minutes.

At the beginning of each new picture Denis Phillips estimates the time, the assistance, and the expenditure he will need according to the numbers of A's and B's and C's in the cast.

Rules For Beauty

Most stars, however, come at one time or another under the exacting discipline of beauty, and must observe the rules of massage, exercise, and diet, and also the golden rules of rest.

Just as an aside I should say that the practice regarded as most dangerous to beauty is the cocktail habit or that of drinking liquor in any quantity at all before meals. In the search for beauty each actress is a separate problem to the beauty expert.

During the making of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," Norma Shearer felt that her career was in danger unless she could counteract a tendency to put on weight and at the same time subdue an inclination to anæmia.

Sylvia Ulbeck solved both these problems and at the same time removed excess muscle of arms, shoulders and legs which Norma Shearer had developed as the result of her enthusiasm for tennis and swimming.

These strenuous exercises are regarded as definitely hostile to film beauty.

Constance Bennett presented a different problem. She had to put on weight. She had fallen to seven stone and her natural healthy weight is eight stone. The treatment was a regular nourishing diet, massage, gentle exercise, bed at ten!

Jean Harlow had to undergo reducing exercises and to adopt a diet designed to preserve perfection of complexion. Because of her exceptionally fair colouring, the care of her complexion is of the utmost importance before the camera.

Nearly every film actress has some such individual problem. Greta Garbo has a typically Nordic face. There are the high forehead, the high cheek bones and a general impression of length of features. These characteristics are an enormous asset to the playing of tragic parts.

LOCAL CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS

Gaiety And Carnival At The Hotels.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

Hong Kong residents evidently did not intend to let any thoughts of the depression mar their enjoyment of the Christmas season, judging by the happy faces and high spirits observable at the hotels on Saturday night. Carnival held away at the Hong Kong, the Repulse Bay and the Peninsula Hotels, the "Nine o'clock Review" at the last-named, with Ress Storey, Rose Lee, and a bevy of pretty girls, ending greatly to the gaiety of the evening.

Despite the attractions at the above-named hotels the Gloucester, The Cecil, the St. Francis and the China Emporium were crowded with guests determined to usher in Christmas Day in a spirit of jollity. The cabarets, too, were doing accord business. The management of the Cecil staged a variety entertainment by the Misses Stella Adair and Peg Ray, with Messrs. Richards and Barracough and other performers. The lounges and dining-room of the hotel were gaily decorated and "favours" were distributed to all the guests.

H.M.S. Tamar held a dance at the Garrison Lecture Hall which proved a great success, while Christmas was greeted in like manner at the China Light and Power Recreation Club, King's Park.

Christmas Carols.

The Kowloon Church Carolers, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Baldwin, made a tour of Kowloon parish on Saturday night, from 8 o'clock onwards. Visits were paid to the Kowloon Cricket Club, Kowloon Bowling Green Club, Claremont Hotel, Peninsula Hotel, Humphreys Buildings, Kingsclere Hotel, Phillips House and Torres Buildings, and met with a response of $122.73. The money will be forwarded to St. Dunstan's Homes for War-Blinded Men.

The Christmas Festival was celebrated by the Chinese Y.M.C.A. on Saturday and Christmas Day, when a musical programme was presented on both days in the auditorium. Miss Pool Ying-lam, who recently returned after several years of studying music in America, delighted with her piano solos, while Messrs. Ho Yuk-lan and Ho Yuk-ning contributed instrumental numbers. Addresses were given by the Rev. Yung Park and Mr. Chan Yik-king.

Christmas Carols.

Carol singing formed the basis of Church music on Christmas Day, the Kowloon Union Church holding a local service at matins, at which the Choir and Juvenile Choir rendered carols.

In the evening, at the Hong Kong Union Church, Handel's magnificent work "The Messiah" was rendered, the soloists being—Soprano, Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith; Contralto, Mrs. H. L. Lockhart Tenor, Mr. W. J. T. Phelps; Bass, Mr. W. H. Bailey; Mr. G. E. Longyear was at the organ. Following the service, a social hour was held in the Church Hall.

Bishop Hall preached at St. Andrew's on Christmas morning, when he continued his course of interesting sermons on "Christmas and Advent." The evening service was devoted to the carol singing, with an address by the Vicar, Rev. W. Walton Rogers.

Appropriate music was rendered in St. John's Cathedral for the Christmas services, the Dean preaching in the morning and the Bishop in the evening.

A midnight choral Eucharist was celebrated at the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church, the sermon being delivered by the Rev. F. N. Chamberland, R.N.

Watchnight services were held in all the Roman Catholic Churches. At the Catholic Cathedral confessions were heard all the evening up to midnight, when the Holy Communion was celebrated.

FOOTBALL TEAM ON STRIKE.

Dispute Over Payment Of Doctors' Bills.

New York. The football team at Pittston (Pennsylvania) High School went on strike when the school Athletic Association announced that it would not pay doctors' bills for injuries received during the game. Three hundred other students then "came out" in sympathy with the team. —Reuter.

better market in Roumania and Yugoslavia for her manufactured products.

The plan envisages an economic programme for one year's duration to start with.

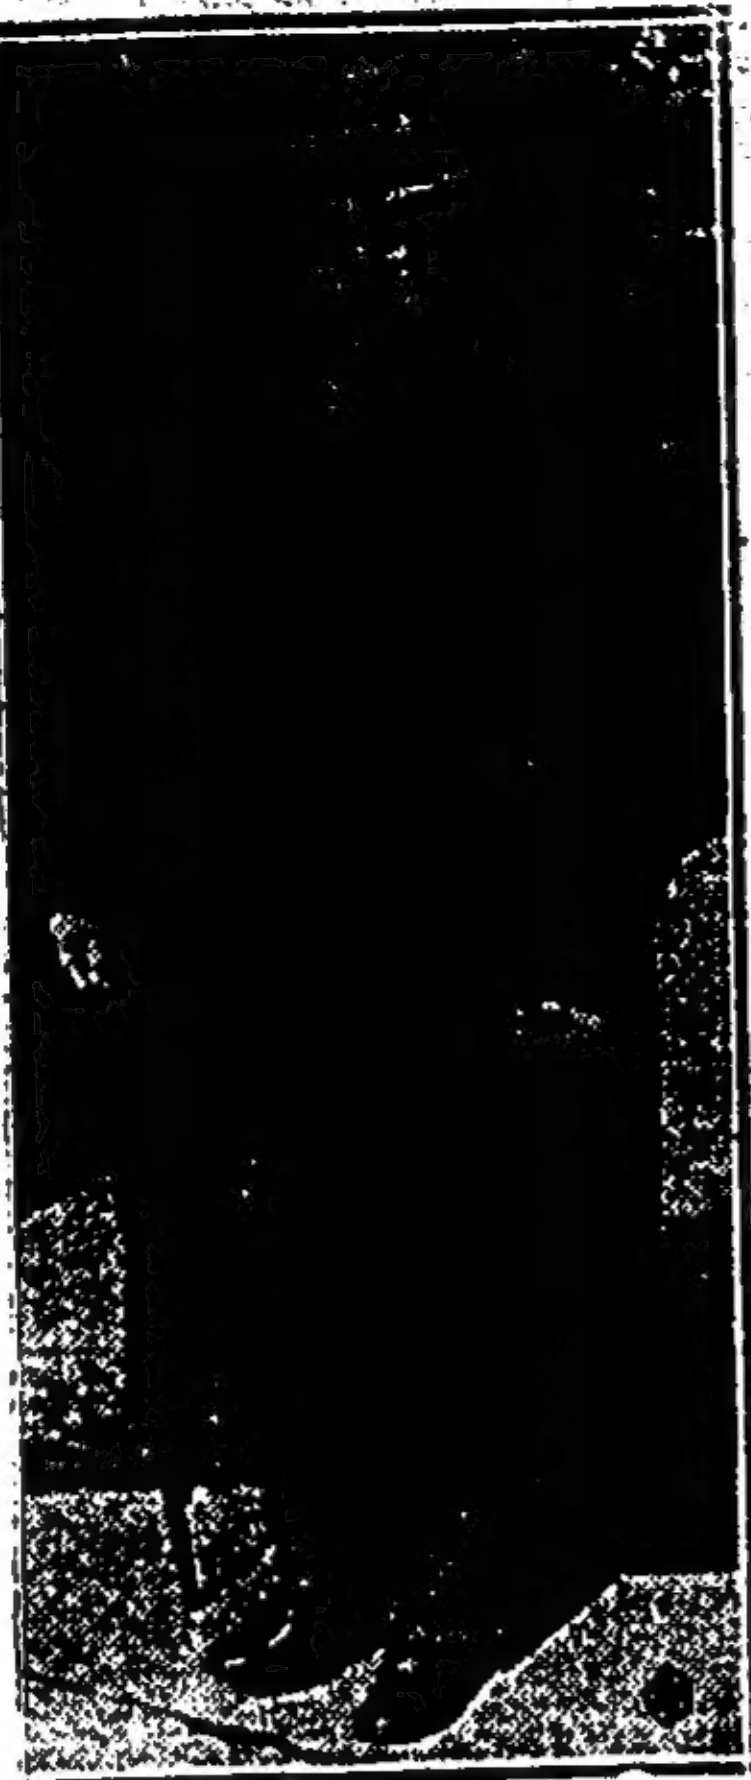

Other matters proposed include the unification of railways, waterways, postal administration, telephone and telegraphic service. Uniform rates and unrestricted service would be established.

Uniformity of customs duties likewise would be established.

Planned economy, such as has been practised or commended in varying degrees in the Fascist countries, Russia and the United States, would be studied and practised.

The political significance of the economic ties will not be overlooked in other European capitals.

Although it often has been reported that many Cuban patriots are out "gunning" for former President Gerardo Machado, who fled his revolt-torn country, the ex-dictator doesn't seem much perturbed as he is pictured strolling at Poughkeepsie, N. To-day's Short Story.

RAID NIGHT

By H. M. Tomlinson.

SEPTEMBER, 17, 1915, I had crossed from France to Fleet Street, and was thankful at first to have about me the things I had proved, with their suggestion of intimacy, their look of security; but I found the once familiar editorial rooms of that daily paper a little more than estranged. I thought them worse, if anything, than Ypres. Ypres is within the region where, when soldiers enter it, they abandon hope, because they have become same at last, and their minds have a temperature a little below normal. In Ypres, whatever may have been their heroic and exalted dreams, they awake, see the world is mad, and surrender to the doom from which they know a world bereft will give them no reprieve.

There was a way in which the office of that daily paper was familiar. I had not expected it, and it came with a shock. Not only the compulsion, but the bewildering incoherence of war was suggested by its activities. Reason was not there. It was ruled by a blind and fixed idea. The glaring artificial light, the head-long haste of the telegraph instruments, the wild litter on the floor, the rapt attention of the men scanning the news, their abrupt movements and speed when they had to cross the room, still with their gaze fixed, their expression that of those who dreaded something worse to happen; the suggestion of tension, as though the Last Trump were expected at any moment, filled me with vague alarm.

The only place where that impatient panic is not usual in the front line, because there the enemy is within hail and is known to be an other unlucky fool. But I allayed my anxiety. I learned over one of the still figures, and scanned the fateful document which had given its reader the aspect of one who was staring at what the Moving Finger had done. Its message was no more than the excited whisper of a witness who had just left a key-hole. But I realized in that moment of surprise that this office was an essential feature of the War; without it, the War might become Peace. It provoked the emotions which assembled civilians in ecstatic support of the sacrifices, just as the staff of a corps headquarters, at some comfortable leagues behind the trenches, maintains its fighting men in the place where gas and shells tend to engender common sense and irresolution.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "When I Was In Africa," by Massimo Bontempelli.

I left the glare of that office, its heat and half-hysterical activity, and went into the coolness and quiet of the darkened street, and there the dread left me that it could be a duty of mine to keep hot pace with patriots in full stampede. The stars were wonderful. It is such a tranquillising surprise to discover there are stars over London. Until this War, when the street illuminations were doused, we never knew it. It strengthens one's faith to discover the Pleiades over London; it is not true that their delicate glimmer has been put out by the remarkable incandescent energy of our power stations. As I crossed London Bridge the City was as silent as though it had come to the end of its days, and the shapes I could just make out under the stars were no more substantial than the shadows of its past. Even the Thames was a noiseless ghost.

London at night gave me the illusion that I was really hidden from the monstrous trouble of Europe, and, at least for one sleep, had got out of the war. I felt that my suburban street, secluded in trees and importance, was as remote from the evil I knew of as though it were in Alaska. When I came to that street I could not see my neighbours' homes. It was with some doubt that I found my own. And there, with three hours to go to midnight, and a book and some circumstances that certainly had not changed, I had retired thankfully into a fragment of that world I had feared we had completely lost.

"What a strange moaning the birds in the shrubbery are making!" my companion said once. I listened to it, and thought it was strange. There was a long silence, and then she looked up sharply.

"What's that?" she asked. "Listen!"

I listened. My hearing is not good.

"Nothing!" I assured her.

"There it is again." She put down her book with decision, and rose. I thought, in some alarm.

"Trains," I suggested. "The gas bubbling. The dog next door. Your imagination." Then I listened to the dogs. It was curious, but they all seemed awake and excited.

"What is the noise like?" I asked, surrendering my book on the antiquity of man.

She twisted her mouth in a comical way most seriously, and tried to mimic a deep and solemn note.

"Guns," I said to myself, and went to the front door.

Beyond the vague opposite shadows of some elms, lights twinkled in the sky, incontinent sparks, as though glow lamps on an invisible pattern of wires were being switched on and off by an idle child. That was shrapnel. I walked along the empty street a little to get a view between and beyond the villas.

I turned to say something to my companion, and saw then my silent neighbour, shadowy groups about me, as though they had not approached, but had materialised where they stood. We watched those infernal sparks. A shadow lit its pipe and offered me its match. I heard the guns snarl enough now, but they were miles away.

A slender finger of brilliant light moved slowly across the sky, checked, and remained pointing firmly at something at something it had found in the heavens. A Zeppelin!

There it was, at first a wraith, a suggestion on the point of vanishing, and then illuminated and embodied, a celestial maggot stuck to the round of a cloud like a caterpillar to the edge of a leaf. We gazed at it silently, I cannot say for how long. The beam of light might have pinned the bright larva to the sky for the inspection of interested Londoners. Then somebody spoke. "I think it is coming our way."

I thought so too. I went indoors, calling out to the boy as I passed his room upstairs, and went to where the girls were asleep. Three miles, three minutes! It appears to be harder to waken children when a Zeppelin is coming your way. I got the elder girl awake, lifted her, and sat her on the bed, for she had become heavier, I noticed. Then I put her small sister over my shoulder, as limp and indifferent as a half-filled bag. By this time the elder one had snuggled into the foot of her bed, resigned to that place if the other end were disputed, and was asleep again. I think I became annoyed, and spoke sharply. We were in a hurry. The boy was waiting for us at the top of the stairs.

"Come on down," I said. We went into the central room, put coats round them, answering eager and innocent questions with inconsequence, had the cellar door and a light ready, and then went out to inspect affairs. There were more searchlights at work. Bright diagonals made a living network on the overhead dark. It was remarkable that those rigid beams should not rest on the roof of night, but that their ends should glide noiselessly about the invisible dome. The nearest of them was followed, when in the zenith, by a faint oval of light. Sometimes it discovered and broke on delicate films of high fair-weather clouds. The shells were still twinkling brilliantly, and the guns were making a rhythmless baying in the distance, like a number of alert and indignant hounds. But the Zeppelin had gone. The firing diminished and stopped.

They went to bed again, and as I had become acutely depressed, and the book now had no value, I turned in myself, assuring everyone, with the usual confidence of the military expert, that the affair was over for the night. But once in bed I found I could see there only the progress humanity had made in its movement heavenwards. That is the way with us; never to be concerned with the newest clever trick of our enterprising fellow-men till a sudden turn of affairs shows us, by the immediate threat to our own existence, that that cleverness has added to the peril of civilised society, whose house has been built on the verge of the pit. War now would be not only between soldiers. In future wars the place of honour would be occupied by the infants, in their cradles. For war is not murder. Starving children is war, and it is not murder.

What treacherous lying is all the heroic poetry of battle! Men will now creep up after dark, ambushed in safety behind the celestial curtains, and drop bombs on sleepers beneath, for the greater glory of some fine figure or other. It filled me, with wrath at the work of Kaisers and Kings, for we know what is possible with them, but with dismay at the discovery that one's fellows are so docile and credulous that they will obey any order, however abominable. The very heavens had been fouled by this obscene and pallid worm, crawling over those eternal verities to which eyes had been lifted for light when night and trouble were over-dark. God was dethroned by science. One looked startled at humanity, seeing not the accustomed countenance, but, for a moment, glimpsing instead the baleful, lidless stare of the evil of the slime, the unmentionable of a nightmare.

A deafening crash brought us out of bed in one movement. I must have been dozing. Someone cried, "My children!" Another rending uproar interrupted my effort to shepherd the flock to a lower floor. There was a raucous avalanche of glass. We muddled down somehow—I forget how. I could not find the matches. Then in the dark we lost the youngest for some eternal seconds while yet another explosion shook the house. We got to the cellar stairs, and at last there they all were, their backs to the coats, sitting on lumber.

A candle was on the floor. There were more explosions, somewhat muffled. The candle-flame showed a little tremulous excitement, as if it were one of the party. It reached upwards curiously in a long, intent flame, and then shrank flat with what it had learned. We were accompanied by grotesque shadows. They stood about us on the white and unfamiliar walls. We waited. Even the shadows seemed to listen with us; they hardly moved, except when the candle-flame was nervous. Then the shadows wavered slightly. We waited. I caught the boy's eye, and winked. He winked back. The youngest, still with sleepy eyes, was trembling, though not with cold, and this her sister noticed, and put her arms about her. His mother had her hand on her boy's shoulder.

There was no more noise outside. It was time, perhaps, to go up to see what had happened. I put a raincoat over my pyjamas, and went into the street. Some of my neighbours, who were special constables, hurried by. The enigmatic night, for a time, for five minutes, or five seconds (I do not know how long it was), was remarkably still and usual. It might have been pretending that we were all mistaken. It was as though we had been merely dreaming our recent excitements.

Then, across a field, a villa began to blaze. Perhaps it had been stunned till then, and had suddenly jumped into a panic of flames. It was wholly involved in one roll of fire and smoke, a sudden furnace so consuming that, when it suddenly ceased, giving one or two dying spasms, I had but an impression of flames rolling out of windows and doors to persuade me that what I had seen was real. The night engulfed what may have been an illusion, for till then I had never noticed a house at that point.

Whispers began to pass of tragedies that were incredible in their incidence and craziness. Three children were dead in the rubble of one near villa. The ambulance that was passing was taking their father to hospital. A woman had been blown from her bed into the street. She was unhurt, but she was insane. A long row of humbler dwellings, over which the dust was still hanging in a faint mist, had been demolished, and one could only hope the stories about that place were far from true.

In Legal Ring

She doesn't look like a heavyweight, but Olive Beck, of Livermore, Cal., expects to give Max Baer (inset), pugilist and film actor, a good fight in their legal battle. Miss Beck is suing Baer at Oakland, Cal., for $250,000, charging breach of promise to wed her.

We were turned away when we would have assisted; all the help that was wanted was there. A stranger offered me his tobacco pouch, and it was then I found my raincoat was a lady's, and therefore had no pipe in its pocket.

The sky was suspect, and we watched it, but saw only vacuity till one long beam shot into it, searching slowly and deliberately the whole mysterious ceiling, yet hesitating sometimes, and going back on its path as though intelligently suspicious of a matter which it had passed over too quickly. It peered into the immense caverns of a cloud to which it had returned, illuminating to us unsuspected and horrifying possibilities of hiding-places above us.

We expected to see the discovered enemy boldly emerge then. Nothing came out. Other beams by now had joined the pioneer, and the night became bewildering with a dazzling mesh of light. Shells joined the wandering beams, those sparks of orange and red. A world of fantastic chimney-pots and black rounds of trees leaped into being between us and the sudden expansion of a fan of yellow flame. A bomb! We just felt, but hardly heard, the shock of it. A furious succession of such bursts of light followed, a convulsive opening and shutting of night. We saw that when midnight is cleft asunder it has a fiery inside.

The eruptions ceased. Idle and questioning, not knowing we had heard the last gun and bomb of the affair, a little stunned by the marvellous rapidity and violence of this attack, we found ourselves gazing at the familiar and shadowy peace of our suburb as we have always known it. It had returned to that aspect. But something had gone from it for ever. It was not, and never could be again, as once we had known it. The security of our own place had been based on the good will or indifference of our fellow-creatures everywhere. Tonight, over that obscure and unimportant street, we had seen a celestial portent illuminate briefly a little of the future of mankind. [from "Waiting for Daylight" (Cassell).]

Named Among Hollywood's Most Beautiful

In answer to the assertion of Penryn Stanlawa, celebrated portrait painter, that "there is no perfect beauty in Hollywood," a number of equally famous brother artists have sprung to the defense of filmdom's fairest Henry Olive, who has painted virtually every star in Hollywood, invites Stanlawa to the film capital, where he offers to display "more beautiful women than he dreamed of in his entire life." Among stars who possess the beauty which Stanlawa says does not exist are Marion Davies, Katharine Hepburn and Constance Bennett. Another artist who defends the stars is Neysa McMein, who asserts the "illusion of beauty" is sufficient. The animation behind the face of Norma Shearer or Marlene Dietrich is enough to make them beautiful regardless of symmetrical perfection of facial features.

SNEEZING MENDS TWISTED NECK

Nature Cures What Baffled Doctors.

Sydney, N.S.W.

A sneezing fit did for Ralph Cummins, aged 25, salesman what specialists had been afraid to attempt.

Cummins and a friend were wrestling in a George Street gymnasium when Cummins had his neck twisted. Two vertebrae in his neck were seriously dislocated.

Doctors were afraid to operate, and Cummins lay still for a week in the Sydney Hospital until he had a sneezing attack and jerked his head. He felt considerably relieved, and an X-ray examination showed that the displacement had been corrected.—Reuter.

STOMACH DANCE TO BE BANNED.

Egyptian Actress Fined
For Immorality.

Alexandria.

The "Dance of the Stomach," one of the oldest dances of the East, has been declared improper by the Egyptian Court of Cassation, and in future will probably be prohibited by law.

This follows a police case against an Egyptian cabaret actress who has been dancing nightly in an Arab cabaret. Her "turn" was judged immoral by police officers present.

The dancer has been fined $1.10, and ordered to desist from the performance of the dance.

The council for the defence argued that the stomach dance was not only traditional, but a great attraction to tourists from all over the world.—Reuter.

SECRETS BEHIND FILM FACES

With serve and straight hair-dressing, Greta Garbo made an ideal "Anna Christie." On the other hand, for the softness of the character of "Susan Lenox," Greta Garbo had to adopt a fringe and coloured hair-dressing to give her face an oval smoothness.

Make-Up Problems

Sylvia Sydney has to fight with breadth of features and must dress her hair to make her face look narrower. In such cases, rouge is shaded carefully to the centre of the face, and the illusion of length is further helped by a touch of rouge on the chin.

Stars with "baby faces" are instructed to use curls in moderation and to avoid making the mouth pout by the use of an exaggerated "Cupid's bow."

Loretta Young hides the firmness of her jaw by using very full make-up on the lips, and by adopting a girlish style of hair-dressing. Occasionally in her films you will find that this make-up of the lips photographs as a pouting expression.

A general film rule is that thin lips are given fullness by carrying rouge firmly to the upper and lower edges of the lips but not to the corners, while full-lipped stars centre the rouge and tone out at the edges.

But not everything can be done with rouge.

Constance Cummings had to solve the problem of athletic shoulders and her dancer's legs had to be massaged down to film standards.

Carole Lombard had to undergo strenuous reducing exercises when she graduated from comedy to drama.

The problem of film beauty is essentially the problem of health.

It has not always been regarded in this same light. It is not yet three years since Louis Wolheim died as the result of attempting to take 40lb. off his weight in as many days when he was selected for the part afterwards played by Adolphe Menjou in "The Front Page."

ACCIDENT UNITES BROTHERS

New Life Of Ease For Workless Man.

EACH BELIEVED DEAD

Sydney, N.S.W.

When Roderick Gillies, 65, of the Government Relief Camp, near Mount Gambier, South Australia, recovers from a fractured leg which he sustained in the camp, he will travel by sedan car to life ease.

The publicity given to his accident means re-uniting him to his two wealthy brothers, who had heard no word of him for 38 years and believed him dead.

Gillies left his home in Terang, Victoria, nearly 40 years ago, when the Coolgardie gold rush occurred. Efforts to locate him when his father died 12 months after his departure were without success. Years afterwards word reached his brothers that he was dead.

The two brothers, Alec and Norman, who believed they were the only remaining members of the family, chanced to Maryborough (Victoria).

There they saw the name Roderick Gillies. They telephoned the matron of Mount Gambier Hospital, and she established Gillies's identity.

The two brothers, one of whom is nearly 70, left Maryborough by car early next morning and after the 270 miles, journey a happy reunion took place in a public ward at the hospital.

Roderick Gillies believed that both his brothers were dead.

As soon as his leg is mended his brothers will send a car for him and he will join them in Victoria. Reuter.

NATIVE PREVENTS BLOODSHED.

Faces 2,000 When Armed Only With Cudgel.

DISPERSED AFTER SPEECH

Durban.

Alone and armed only with a knobkerrie (cudgel), Native Constable Muntukaba rode between two opposing factions, numbering about 2,000 men, who were just about to set upon each other at Inlands Native Location. He harangued the fighters, who after a long time dispersed without coming to blows.

The unrest which this courageous action averted was caused by a shooting tragedy at a wedding feast, when a native was shot dead and another injured. Constable Muntukaba was entrusted with an enquiry, in the course of which he came upon the two rival factions armed with assegais and knobkerries about to attack each other. Reuter.

270 miles, journey a happy reunion took place in a public ward at the hospital.

Roderick Gillies believed that both his brothers were dead.

As soon as his leg is mended his brothers will send a car for him and he will join them in Victoria. Reuter.

SYDNEY BRIDGE SUICIDE

Student Curses When Taken From Water.

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Sydney, N.S.W.

Toppling from the centre of the Harbour Bridge, 150 feet into the water, a young man cursed and raved at rescuers when he was dragged out alive, and continued to call for death even when Sydney Hospital was reached. He died shortly afterwards.

The body was subsequently identified as that of a law student. He was very well liked by his employers and friends, and was the son of a clergyman, now dead. His mother is very ill.

No one apparently saw the actual leap. By the time the Water Police, reached the spot, a man in a skiff had dragged the man from the water, and he was raced to the shore. Central Ambulance was already waiting, and nine minutes after he had struck the water the victim was being attended to at Sydney Hospital by the Medical Superintendent.

"Give me a needle and let me die," he called out.

The fall had split his trousers, and exposed his back, but there was no outward wound of a serious nature. He was placed in a ward where he died suddenly. Reuter.
